

COMING TO ODEON

Miss Jane Grey.

Miss Jane Grey will appear in "The Birth of a Race" which will be shown at the Broadway Odeon January 5 and coming direct from a long, successful run in St. Louis. This great drama of the films was in preparation for more than two years and employed the services of the best scenario writers, most competent actors, directors and photographers that could be secured. The theme of this drama is the story of peace, of democracy, of brotherhood. It traces the history of world advancement from the Garden of Eden to the dawn of peace, in the present year of our Lord. It is one of the most graphic histories of the world ever presented for the enlightenment entertainment of the people. Perhaps no great photograph has ever been prepared with more earnest care, more historical research, more truth and eager effort for dramatic effect than "The Birth of a Race." No lover of unusual pictures should miss the opportunity of seeing this production.

M. U. AWARDS $9,000
IN PRIZES EACH YEAR

Fifty-Six Scholarships, Fellowships and Other Honors for Students.

MANY ARE ENDOWED

Writing, Speaking, Scholarship and Research Work Are Recognized.

Many of the students of the University of Missouri do not know that they have the opportunity to win in scholarships, honors, prizes and fellowships each year more than $9,000, which amount is awarded in about fifty-six individual awards or medals.

These inducements are principally for scholarly effort. They are fairly well distributed in the different schools, colleges, and departments of the University. Some are offered for excellence in writing, some for excellence in speaking, some for high scholarship standing and others for research work.

A good many of these prizes come from endowments placed in the care of the Board of Curators. Interest on these endowments furnish a stipulated sum each year to be awarded as the Board of Curators direct, or as stipulated by the donor or the trustees of his estate.

Others are out and out gifts, such as the Millard's Review prize of $50 for the best editorial on China written by a student in the School of Journalism, and the Missouri Society in Japan's prize of $50 for the best essay written by a journalism student on the relations of Japan and America. The Japan Society's offer is being made for the first time this year.

Other prizes in the field of writing are the William J. Bryan prize of $17.50 or a medal of that value for an essay on some phase of the science of government; the Menorah prize of $100 for the best essay dealing with some subject with Jewish history, literature, religion or some current question affecting the Jews; the William Volker prize of $50 and $25 each on "Workmen's Compensation," "Child Welfare," and "Rural Welfare;" and the McAnally medal for the best essay, thesis or poem by a senior.

The Stephens medal is awarded for the best oration by a student of the University who has not received a Bachelor's degree.

In the field of research, the University offers each year a limited number of fellowships worth $400 each. Open to applicants irrespective of departments, along with several scholarships worth $200 each.

A number of research fellowships in the Agricultural Experiment Station worth $400 each and several scholarships worth $200 each are also offered. Fifteen hundred dollars of the Gregory educational fund goes to supporting fellowships and scholarships in the Graduate School. About $300 is available from the Peabody fund for fellowships and scholarships in the School of Education, part of this for research work.

In the field of scholarships, strictly speaking, no research work attached, ten scholarships are awarded annually of $150 each, awards being based on high scholastic standing of students in various divisions of the University. A scholarship on American citizenship and another along the same lines, known as the Frank P. Blair award, of $250 each are offered this year as usual.

The interest on $5,000 is available to the freshman in the College of Arts and Science who shows up to best advantage not only in scholarship but also in literary attainments, moral character, physical constitution and general worthiness. This is the Rhodes Clay Scholarship.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy offer $150, basis award being along American citizenship lines. Only descendants of Confederate ancestors are eligible. Another is offered of $200 by a different chapter of the Eugene Field Scholarship, worth same organization.

about $100, is awarded each year to the junior in the School of Journalism who has shown himself to be best equipped in professional ideals and general newspaper making ability to do the work of a journalist.

Fifty dollars a year is awarded in the School of Education for high scholastic standing under provisions of the S. H. Ford Scholarship. Another $50 prize is awarded to the second year law student who makes the best general record during the year.

The James S. Rollins scholarships provide $50 each to two members of the College of Arts and Science, to one junior in the College of Agriculture, to a second year student in the School of Law, to one-fourth year student in the School of Engineering and to one first year student in the School of Medicine.

Then there is the Chi Omega Social Betterment Prize of $25 and the William Mack Prize of a set of law books in forty volumes, competition open to fourth year law students. The Laws astronomical medal is awarded for superior work along astronomical lines. The Crumbaugh medal is awarded for high scholarship in chemistry.

Interest on the Jay L. Torrey Loan Fund for the benefit of women journalists has been converted into a prize of $100 to be awarded each year to the woman journalist showing best ability in general newspaper work. The University catalogue explains the individual awards in detail how they are made, who are eligible, amount of awards and when the applicant contestant must qualify.

82 LYNCHINGS IN 1919

Tuskegee Institute Prepares Record for the Year.

According to the record compiled by Monroe N. Work, of the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 82 lynchings in 1919, of which 77 were in the South and 5 in the North and West. This is 18 more than the number 64 for the year 1918. Of those lynched 75 were negroes and 7 were whites. One of those put to death was a negro woman. Nineteen, or less than one-fourth of those put to death, were charged with rape or attempted rape.

Seven, of the victims were burned to death. Nine were put to death and then their bodies were burned. The charges against those burned to death were: rape, 3; murder, 2; killing sheriff, 1; no charge given, 1. The charges against those first killed and then their bodies burned were: attempted rape, 3; shooting officers of the law, 3; rape, 1; murder, 1; incendiary talk, 1.
